CAUTION.
WHEREAS very large and heavy debts are justly due and owing from messrs. Blair M'Clenachan and Patrick Moore, of the city of Philadelphia, merchants, trading under the firm of Blair M'Clenachan and P. Moore, and from Blair M'Clenachan in his separate capacity; to which, by the laws of the land, all the joint as well as separate property of the said Gentlemen, is, and ought to be, liable. And whereas it is clearly and satisfactorily ascertained, that mr. Blair M'Clenachan, of the said firm, has conveyed away to mr. John H. Huston, his son-in-law, to his daughter, miss M'Clenachan, and to his son, George M'Clenachan, several large and valuable real estates, as well as considerable personal property, in the city and county of Philadelphia, in the county of Lancaster, in the county of New-Castle on Delaware, and elsewhere, with a view, as it is apprehended, to defeat the Creditors in the recovery of their just debts.—This is, therefore, to forewarn all persons whomsoever, against the purchase from the said grantees, or either of them, of any portion of the said real or personal property, as the most vigorous measures will without delay be taken to render the same liable to the just demands of the Creditors.
By order of the Creditors.
Thomas Fitzsimons,
Philip Nicklin,
Isaac Wharton,
William M'Murtrie,
Samuel W. Fisher, } Committee.
Philadelphia, December 17th, 1796. 20th.$

TO THE PUBLIC.
THE caution introduced into the public prints, warning all persons against purchasing from the grantees of Blair M'Clenachan, any portion of the large, real and personal estates he conveyed away to his son-in law and to his children was the result of a deliberation had upon the subject by a general and numerous meeting of the creditors as well of Blair M'Clenachan and P. Moore as of Blair M'Clenachan individually. It was no more than an execution of that trust confided in the subscribers by those creditors: a step which it would have been a breach of duty and honor in them to have omitted. The very statement of the fact therefore must dispel the imputation that it was either "precipitate or vindictive." It originated in a desire to secure the property of the debtor as a fund for the payment of his just debts. It was sanctioned by the advice of council as a measure necessary to the safety of the creditors. If the advertisement has been injurious to Mr. M'Clenachan he owes that injury to his own unjustifiable conduct, not to the subscribers who have merely published the truth in terms as mild as the fact would admit, and who mean to investigate in a high court of justice the validity of those purchases of which Mr. M'Clenachan so confidently speaks.
The subscribers therefore are bound by a sense of duty to the creditors in general to repeat their caution against purchasing of those grantees or either of them, and to extend the terms of it to a purchase from any other persons (if such there be) to whom Mr. M'Clenachan may have made similar conveyances.

Dancing.

MR. FRANCIS of the New-Theatre, in conjunction with Mr. BYRN, late Ballet-master, and principal dancer of Covent-Garden Theatre, London, now of the New Theatre in this city, opened their Academy at Mr. Oellers Hotel, on Tuesday, December 13, where they propose to teach, in the most new and approved methods, Dancing in its various useful and ornamental branches.

Mr. Byrn's recent attention to the dances of London and Paris will enable him to complete this branch of education in his scholars in the most finished style. Favorite Scotch reels will also engage their particular attention.

The days of teaching for their young pupils are Thursdays and Saturdays, from three o'clock in the afternoon till six—and on Tuesdays & Thursdays, from six till nine, for those of a more advanced age.

For farther particulars enquire of Messrs. Francis and Byrn, No. 70, north Eighth-street.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Conclusion of the debate on the address in answer to the President's speech.

Thursday, December 15.

Mr. Sitgreaves said he wished to propose an amendment in the fourth section of the address. It had been thought that the committee had not expressed with sufficient strength the desire of the house to preserve harmony with the French republic, and an amendment had accordingly been agreed to, to encrease the force of the passage. For his own part, he said, he had no objection to the use of the most emphatical expressions of desire to preserve peace with that country; but he thought there was a sentiment which it was equally important to have expressed as unequivocally, and in as strong terms, viz. that if, from any unfavorable circumstances, the harmony heretofore subsisting betwixt this country and the French republic, should be interrupted, that the people of this country are determined to assert themselves against all aggressions. The resolution to assert ourselves in this way, ought always, he said, to be in as strong terms as the desire for peace. This determination, it was true, was already expressed in the answer; but since the amendment had been made, it was not sufficiently strong.

Mr. S. supposed that the abstract importance & propriety of this would be evident, in order to aid any negociation which the executive might undertake; but he was led to give additional weight to his argument from what had fallen from the gentleman who bronght forward the amendment to this clause. They had been told, that whatever ignorance might be pretended, that all the grievances complained of by the French government resolved themselves into a dissatisfaction of the British treaty; that this had been the cause of a suspension of the powers of their minister, of the orders for capturing of our vessels, &c. and that these will continue until they receive satisfaction. If this was really the case, he, for his part, did not expect a favorable issue to the negociation. He should hope it would not terminate in peace. If harmony could not be preserved, except we abandon the contract which we have made with Great-Britain, he trusted the termination would not be an abandonment of our honor and of our rights.

As there had been attempts made, Mr. S. observed, to draw a line between the government of this country and the people, artfully insinuating that the acts of government were not in unison with the voice of the people, he wished it unequivocally to appear to the world, that whatever differences of opinion there might be in that house, in one sentiment, at least, all were united, viz. in opposing the aggressions of any country. That this sentiment of asserting our rights, should be expressed with firmness, but moderation, was essential to the peace and honor of our country.

Mr. S. therefore moved to strike out the words from "while" to "countryman," towards the conclusion of the paragraph, and to insert, 'at the same time that we assure ourselves that your just confidence in the patriotism, self-respect and fortitude of our countrymen, will not in any event be disappointed, and that they will not on any occasion forget what is due to the character and government of our nation."

Before he laid this amendment on the table, he would observe, in confirmation of what had been stated by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Ames) that the answer reported was the result of accommodation and compromise; but, as additional emphasis had been given to the desire of harmony and peace, he was desirous that a like additional force should be given to the other part of the sentence.

Mr. Nicholas said the proposition of the gentleman just sat down went to the pledging ourselves at all events to support the executive in the dispute with the French government. He was not willing to do this. He had purposely avoided saying any thing in this debate on the dispute subsisting betwixt this country and France. He was even silent when he heard an insinuation made that the misunderstanding between the two countries was fomented by American citizens in Paris. He had meant, indeed, at some future time, to have called upon the gentleman who made this assertion, for information, as he certainly knew the circumstances of which he spoke so confidently, to be true. He considered the dispute with France, as a subject not yet ripe for discussion. They were told by the President that he reserved his communication on this subject to a future period. For his part, he had never yet read the French minister's note, having been but a few days in the city, it had not fallen in his way. He had no doubt the executive would settle the business amicably with the French republic; but he should think himself unpardonable to pledge himself to any thing respecting it at present. He thonght the proceeding an extraordinary one; he believed however the forms of the house admitted of a remedy for a business of this kind, and this was by calling for the previous question. He therefore moved the previous question.

Mr. Hartley said he was not present when the communication of the President was received; but he thought they were not called upon to go so far as the motion of his colleague proposed. He thought they should be careful how they went into a business of this kind, The subject was not at present ripe. The President was at this time probably settling the matter amicably. He hoped the gentleman would therefore withdraw his motion, and not force it upon the house. When there seemed to be a disposition of unanimity, he hoped it would not be disturbed by this motion. They had a delicate part, he said, to act. The world was armed at all points, and we were not. If war was declared against France, he should wish that it might be done unanimously. He hoped the motion would be withdrawn.

Mr. Baily moved for the yeas and nays on this question.

Mr. Sitgreaves said he was sorry that his motion had created in the mind of his colleague any thing like alarm. In the same breath in which he had emphatically declared that he concurred in the wish to cultivate peace and harmony with the French Republic, that gentleman came forward and said if war was declared he hoped it would be done unanimously. He had stated they had no information on the subject. Was there any thing in this resolution, he asked, which required information. It was stated by the President that differences had arisen which he regretted. He also stated it to be his wish to cultivate peace and harmony with the French Republic; but he states that, in pursuing this, he shall not forget what is due to the character and government of our nation.

The amendment he had proposed conveyed no other sentiment, and ought by all means to be connected with the earnest wish expressed for peace. There was nothing about declaring war or wishing for war, but that we should in any event not forget what was due to our national character. There was nothing offensive or irritating against the French Nation, or any other nation in this. Any sentiment of this kind must arise from the gentleman's own feeling, and not from his proposition. He was glad the yeas and nays had been called for; if they had not been called, he himself would had made the motion.

In answer to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Nicholas) he would just say, that this house, or this country were not pledged, by this resolution, to do any thing which we ought not to do.

Mr. Claiborne hoped the motion of the gentleman from Pennsylvania would not be put, as it carried with it an hostile aspect, and he wished by all means to preserve peace with the French Republic.

The Speaker reminded the house that the previous question had been called for and that gentlemen must confine their observations to that object.

Mr. W. Smith said gentlemen might as well be muzzled, if they were not permitted to speak their sentiments.

The Speaker insisted upon the gentleman confining himself to order.

Mr. W. Smith said he rose to give his reasons in favour of adopting the proposed amendment, and against the previous question. Gentlemen seemed to think that at some time it might be proper to enter into such a resolution, but not now. He conceived that this was the proper time, and would give his reasons for that opinion—because it respects the subject before them, the answer to the President's address, and because something of the kind seemed to be called for, to declare that we did not depend entirely on the justice and moderation of the French Nation; that we were determined to support our Executive in maintaining the dignity of our country, and that we were not so alarmed by the note of their Minister, as to throw ourselves upon the mercy of that nation.

Gentlemen said they had no information on the subject. He asked them whether the French Minister had not appealed to the people of the United States? And whether it was not proper for them to speak on this occasion? He states that his nation is offended with ours, and that the measures which that Government has taken will continue untill our Government returns to itself by a change of conduct. In his opinion, Mr. Smith said, this was the proper time for those gentlemen who conceived that government had maintained its neutrality with wisdom and firmness, to come forward and declare it; to say to the executive it might depend upon that house for support. There was no threatning, he said in this. The threat did not come from us; it came from the French Government. The French Minister had laid great stress upon the treaty with Great Britain, which he considers as a violation of neutrality, and a just cause of offence. If this idea was pursued, he said we must have war with one nation or the other. Would not, then, gentlemen say to the Executive you may rely upon us.

Mr. Smith said he had made these observations and had endeavoured to confine himself within the line of order (about which he had been hampered) endeavouring to shew that the motion of his friend ought to be agreed to.

The speaker read the rule of the house on the subject of order.

Mr. Hartley said that he wished to withdraw his opposition. He now saw the necessity of the motion of his colleague, and should support it.

Mr. Harper conceived it to be strictly in order to shew that the proposed declaration was proper to be passed at this time. If he had a right idea of the previous question, it could not have an effect to smother debate. He should therefore, go on to state one or two things which he thought important, and he would begin by declaring, that if he believed the resolution went to the pledging the house to any particular measures they hereafter might see reason to disapprove, he would not only vote for the previous question, but against the motion altogether. If he understood the motion, it went no further than to say, "we join you in wishing to preserve the most sincere amity with the French republic; but if all means to attain it fail; if it should happen, that notwithstanding all the exertions used, peace cannot be preserved, we shall hold ourselves bound to support you." If gentlemen examined the amendment, they would find it contained no more than this. If this was the declaration, he would ask (a member desired to know of the speaker whether Mr. H. was in order. The speaker replied it was impossible to say how the gentleman meant to apply what he had said. He desired him to go on) Mr. Harper said it was his intention to shew that the main question ought to be taken, and appealed to the feelings of every heart—to those honourable feelings of patriotism which distinguished American citizens, whether this was an improper declaration? If it were improper, he had widely misconceived their duty. He should think it the deepest disgrace to be at any moment free from the operation of these feelings. And, if this sentiment was honourable, he said, there could not be any occasion in which it would be improper to express it.

Mr. H. said, if he believed all that had been said of our inability, of that submissive spirit which had been spoken of, he would join with gentlemen in their opinion. So weak, so outcast a set of men, should not disgrace such sentiments by uttering them. But he believed they should do right to utter them (Mr. W. Lyman called Mr. Harper to order.)

The speaker said the gentleman was out of order. Mr. H. was about to go on, but the speaker informed him he could rise only to explain. (The speaker read the rule on this subject.) Mr. Harper rose, and the speaker wished to know whether he appealed from the chair to the house. He answered in the affirmative; and on leave being given, he explained to the house, that he meant to shew that the main question ought to be put, as a proper declaration to be made at this time. He complained of this strictness against him, which was closing his mouth on an important question—he however submitted to the house. The sense of the house being taken, he was declared out of order, 50 votes being against him.

The previous question was then taken by yeas and nays, and carried 49 to 30.

On motion of Mr. Blount, the yeas and nays were next taken on striking out the last sentence, and lost, 54 to 24; and on motion of the same gentleman, they were also taken upon the answer as amended, and carried, 67 to 12. The yeas and nays have already appeared in the minute of the day.

In Select and Common Councils of the City of Philadelphia, 22d December, 1796.

"Resolved, That the Mayor be authorized to offer a reward of FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS for apprehending and prosecuting to conviction any person or persons who may be found attempting to set fire to any part of the city; and that the Mayor be requested to draw an order on the Treasurer for the money."

PROCLAMATION.

City of Philadelphia, ss.

WHEREAS the city of Savannah in the state of Georgia hath lately been greatly injured from a most terrible conflagration, and by authentic information from the cities of New-York and Baltimore, it appears that attempts have been lately made to set fire to those populous and wealthy cities; and from certain circumstances which have lately occurred in different parts of this city, there is reason to apprehend that there are persons lurking within its limits, who are instigated with the diabolical design of setting it on fire. Now, in order to exert the vigilant attention of all well disposed persons to detect and bring to punishment such attrocious incendiaries, I Hilary Baker, Mayor of the said city of Philadelphia, in pursuance of the foregoing resolutions of the Select and Common Councils of the said city, do hereby offer a reward of FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS, to be paid to any person, or persons who shall apprehend and prosecute to conviction, any person or persons who may be found attempting to set fire to any part of the said city of Philadelphia.

Given under my hand, at Philadelphia, the twenty-third day of December, Anno-Domini One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety-Six.

HILARY BAKER,
Mayor of the said City of Philadelphia.

SWANN'S

Riding School, Horse Academy & Infirmary.
Adjoining the Public Square, Market Street.

T. SWANN

RETURNS his sincere thanks to those gentlemen by whom he has been employed, during his residence in this City, and flatters himself that the success of his efforts, in the numerous, obstinate and dangerous diseases in Horses, in which he has been consulted, together with his moderate charges, will secure their future favors and recommendation.

He now begs leave to inform them and the public at large that his spacious and commodious premises, erected for the purposes above described are open for the reception of pupils of either sex, who wish to be instructed in the Art of Riding, and the right method of governing their horses, so as to ride them with ease, elegance, and safety—their horses will be carefully and expeditiously broke, for every purpose, and made obedient to the will of the riders; the natural powers which are shut up in them, will be unfolded by art, calling forth uniformity of motion, and giving to that noble animal all those beauties of action which providence has so bountifully bestowed on them.

Also, at his hospital, every disorder to which the horse is liable will be treated according to the rules of art, confirmed by long and repeated experience.

The utility of the above institution has never been questioned, that it has long been wanted in this city, every gentleman's stud will manifest, and T. SWANN as the first establisher of the veterenary art, solicits and relies upon the support of that public (which he is ever anxious in serving) to enable him to bring it to perfection. The idea of a subscription for that purpose has been hinted by several gentleman, who wish to promote the institution—the amount of each subscription to be returned by services in any of the departments he professes, agreeable to the rate of charges stated in his hand bill. Such subscription is now open, and the signatures of many respectable gentlemen already obtained. He therefore injorms his friends and such Ladies and gentlemen to whom he has not the honor of being known, that he shall in a few days take the liberty of waiting upon them and soliciting their support and protection.

N B. Horses are properly prepared for those Ladies and Gentlemen who wish to be instructed.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

Extract from the Journal of the Senate.

SATURDAY, December 17, 1796.

The committee appointed to confer with the directors of the bank of Pennsylvania, chosen by the Senate, having, according to the directions of the Senate, joined the committee of the House of Representatives, appointed "to receive, from the directors of the bank of Pennsylvania who have been appointed by the Legislature, any communications they may make relating to that institution," report—

That, at the first conference held with the said directors, they informed your committee, that John Barclay, Esq. president of the said bank, had applied, to his own use, a large sum of money, the property of the bank; that the said directors, as the immediate representatives of the state in that institution, conceived it to be their duty, to make an early communication of the circumstance to the Legislature, not only for their information, but that a committee might be appointed to receive, from time to time, an account of any other circumstances which, on investigation, might appear to demand attention.

At a subsequent conference with the said directors, your committee were informed, that a more accurate investigation of the accounts of the bank had taken place, when it appeared, that Jonathan Mifflin, the late cashier, and several other persons, had, by over drafts and other means, obtained from the bank sundry sums of money, the property of the bank; that, in consequence of this discovery, the directors applied for payment of the several sums so procured, a considerable portion of which has been paid in money, and security taken for the remainder, except to a small amount.

Upon the whole, your committee are of opinion, that the loss which the stockholders of the bank of Pennsylvania may sustain, by the disagreeable transactions above specified, will amount to a very inconsiderable sum, being, in the estimation of the directors, less than fifteen thousand dollars, from every cause, since the commencement of the institution.

Your committee think it proper to state, for the information of the Senate, that the whole amount of over-drafts was about two hundred thousand dollars.

They, with pleasure, add, that the conduct of the directors on the part of the state, throughout this business, merits the approbation of all who are interested in the welfare of that institution; and that they have reason to believe, the Bank is in a situation perfectly safe, and, therefore, deserving the confidence of the public in general.

House of Representatives.

Yesterday the house was engaged in business relative to the bank of Pennsylvania. Some days ago, a resolution passed their body, appointing a joint committee of the two houses to require of the Directors of that bank, for the purpose of laying before the house, a statement of the accounts of the said Bank, including an account of the notes in circulation, notes and cash in hand, &c. This resolution was sent to the Senate for concurrence; but instead of concurring in this resolution, they sent a different one to the house of Representatives, upon a principle which had already been overruled in that house, appointing a committee to make the enquiry, and to report generally. This resolution was yesterday under consideration, when Mr. Lieb moved to postpone the business for the purpose of appointing a conference betwixt the two houses. This was objected to on the ground of unnecessarily protracting the business, which, it was alledged would unnecessarily injure the credit of the Bank, by exciting unnecessary alarm. On Mr. Evans observing that if the house had been more particular in its enquiries heretofore, the mischiefs which had arisen by the overdrawing of individuals, would not probably have happened, Mr. Waln replied that the gentleman was mistaken in supposing any enquiry the Legislature had a right to make could prevent the overdrawing of individuals, since a committee from the two houses had not power to look into the accounts of individuals, but merely to obtain a general statement. He was in favour of the resolution from the Senate, as containing all that was necessary, though he said he doubted not the concerns of the Bank would bear the strictest scrutiny, and particularly at this time, as the present was a season peculiarly favourable to the Banks in Philadelphia. But, if gentlemen supposed (as it had been hinted in the course of the debate) that the bank of Pennsylvania, or any other Bank, could at any moment answer all the demands which might be made upon it, they were mistaken. If this were the case, said he, how could we receive nine per cent for our money, when the Bank only charges six to its customers?

If this were so, stockholders could receive no more than would remain out of 6 per cent. when all the expences of conducting the business were defrayed. But, Mr. Waln added the profits of a bank arise from its being able to discount beyond its capital, and any step taken which had a tendency to lessen the good opinion of the public in an institution of this kind, would necessarily render it less productive. At length the sense of the house was taken by yeas and nays, when there appeared 40 in favour of the postponement and 22 against it.

Mr. Leib then moved that a committee of conference with the Senate be appointed; but on some objections being made to it, he withdrew his motion, and the house adjourned. The answer to the address did not come under consideration.

In North-Carolina, one vote was given for Charles Pinckney, and three for Judge Iredell.

Letters from New-Hampshire of the first authority, received yesterday, inform, that the Electors of that state gave 6 votes for Mr. Adams and 6 for Mr. Ellsworth.—The account heretofore published, of 6 votes having been given for Mr. Pinckney, was consequently erroneous.

The official returns from New-Hampshire were received yesterday.

Notwithstanding the ill success of the Adams ticket in South-Carolina, produced by slanderous misrepresentations of the Vice-President, it is with much satisfaction we notice the names of the eight candidates who were on that ticket, as they are all known to be among the very first and most respectable characters, not only in that state, but in any part of the United States. We repeat their names with pleasure.

Governor Vanderhorst, Governor of S. C.
General Washington,
Mr. H. W. Desaussure, late director of the Mint.
General Barnwell,
Dr. Ramsay, the Historian, President of the Senate.
Mr. R. Barnwell, late Member of Congress, Speaker of the House.
Nathaniel Russell, Esq.
John Bull, Esq. late Member of Congress.

When such men support the federal interest, there can be no doubt, that the aberrations resulting from party and personal views, and a want of information will be of short duration, and that light and reflexion will soon restore South-Carolina to that distinguished station in the federal union, which she has always held.

Yesterday Jonathan Smith, esquire, of Chester county, was chosen by the directors, cashier of the Bank of Pennsylvania.

For the last two days the weather has been severely cold. On Thursday night the Mercury in Farenheit's Thermometer was 26 degrees below freezing point; and yesterday morning the Delaware river was frozen, so that many persons crossed on the ice. Nearly opposite to Spruce Street it broke under a young man, and he fell into the water. With great difficulty he was saved, after being nearly exhausted with the cold.

BY THIS DAY'S MAILS.

NEW-YORK, December 22.

We have received by Capt. Wood from Grenock, London papers to Oct. 17. The French accounts are later, but the German accounts give a different complexion to many transactions.

Private Correspondence.

Bremen, October 7.

The enemy's daring plan of uniting in Germany their three desolating armies, has met with the fate which its temerity deserved, and, for the welfare of society, is totally defeated. Jourdan completely routed, his late army scattered by twenties, and still pursued by the honest peasantry of Germany—Moreau retreating in the utmost disorder, every day altering his route, but now said to be marching towards Brisgau; Buonaparte, necessitated to abandon his darling project of penetrating into Tyrol, where every man, nay where every woman and child, is under arms, instead of passing Trent, has retrogaded beyond Verona! The Austrians are in full possession of the city of Ulm, since the 25th ult. The French garrison of 800 men became prisoners of war.

The King of Prussia has thought proper, modestly, to withdraw his garrison from Nuremberg—he did not think the moment an opportune one to add that to his other political robberies.

The French, through absolute want of provision, meant to march to the Hundsruck, leaving only two divisions behind them.

The enemy not being able to cope with the brave Austrians, are now trying in the environs of Dusseldorff, what they can effect among themselves—scarcely a day passes without some bloody rencontre—and latterly—as a letter before me states—five hundred of them were killed.

FOR SALE,

A PLANTATION,

ABOUT 12 miles from this City, situate in Abington Township, Montgomery-County; containing 70 acres, a new stone house, two stories high, 2 rooms on a floor, fire places in each, a stone kitchen and stone spring house, over an excellent spring of water, a barn, stable, sheds, barracks, &c. A large apple orchard, and a variety of other fruit, about 12 acres of good meadow well watered, and wood sufficient for fire, and fencing the place. Possession may be had the 1st of April next. Property in this City will be taken in exchange. Enquire at No. 37, Arch-Street.

Philadelphia, September 13, 1796. ttstf

TO BE SOLD,

A LEASE for seven years, from the 25th March next, in that capital and beautiful FARM, called

PROSPECT-HILL,

Situated within one quarter of a mile from the Brandywine Mills, and half a mile from the borough of Wilmington.

THE dwelling house is built of stone, two stories high, genteely finished, and contains four handsome rooms on a floor, besides an entry, with capital garrets, and convenient cellars. It is generally thought to command the most agreeable prospect of the Delaware, from the source of that river to the Capes. This prospect is greatly embellished by a full view of a vast body of meadow, through which the Christiana and Brandywine creeks are seen winding in beautiful meanders. Near the house are a Kitchen, a spacious stone stable and hay loft, a barn, a carriage house, milk-house, &c. and a well of as pure water as any on the continent. The garden contains an acre and quarter of land, abounding with fruit, and particularly with peach trees, of the very best kind, brought from Maryland, and in full bearing. There is, moreover, on the place, a young, apple orchard begining to bear, and several old trees that produce abundantly, besides cherry and other ornamental trees, in great numbers. The farm consists of near sixty acres of land, of good quality, and clear of incumbrances, except taxes, twenty of which are now in excellent clover and timothy, and ten more will be ready for sowing next spring. A residence of nearly 8 years has convinced the subscriber that the situation is remarkably healthy. The great post road from Philadelphia to the Southward runs within seventy yards of the house. In a word, the beauties and convenience of this situation cannot be enumerated in an advertisement, and when examined, will probably command the attention of any person who is desirous of living at one of the most elegant country seats on the continent. The purchaser may enter on the premises next spring, or perhaps, this fall, if application be immediately made to Doctor NICHOLAS WAY, in Philadelphia, to Doctor WHARTON, on the premises, or, in his absence, to Mr. GEORGE TRUITT, in Wilmington.

A quantity of excellent Hay, Grain in the ground, some Stock, &c. may be had by the purchaser at the time of sale.

50,000 Tickets, at Eight Dollars, 400,000

N. B. To favour those who may take a quantity of Tickets, the prize of 40,000 dollars will be the LAST drawn ticket, and the 30,000 the LAST but ONE:

And approved notes, securing payment in either money or prizes, in ten days after drawing, will be received for any number not less than 30 tickets.

This Lottery will afford an elegant specimen of the private buildings to be erected in the City of Washington—Two beautiful designs are already selected for the entire fronts on two of the public squares; from these drawings it is proposed to erect two centre and four corner buildings, as soon as possible after this lottery is sold, and to convey them, when complete, to the fortunate adventurers, in the manner described in the scheme for the Hotel Lottery. A nett deduction of five per cent. will be made to defray the necessary expenses of printing, &c. and the surplus will be made a part of the fund intended for the National University, to be erected within the city of Washington.

The Drawing will commence as soon as the tickets are old off.—The money prizes will be payable in thirty days after it is finished; and any prizes for which fortunate numbers are not produced within twelve months after the drawing is closed, are to be considered as given towards the fund for the University; it being determined to settle the whole business in a year from the ending of the drawing, and to take up the bonds given as security.

The real securities given for the payment of the Prizes, are held by the President and two Directors of the Bank of Columbia, and are valued at more than half the amount of the lottery.

The twenty four gentlemen who by appointment of the late Commissioners assisted in the management of the Hotel Lottery are requested to undertake this arduous task a second time on behalf of the public; a sufficient number of these having kindly accepted, it is hoped that the friends to a National University and the other federal objects may continue to favor the design.

By accounts received from the different parts of the Continent as well as from Europe, where the tickets have been sent for sale, the public are assured that the drawing will speedily commence, and that the care and caution unavoidably necessary to insure a safe disposal of the tickets, has rendered the short suspension indispensable.

SAMUEL BLODGET.

☞ Tickets may be had at the Bank of Columbia; of James West & Co. Baltimore; of Peter Gilman, Boston; of John Hopkins, Richmond; and of Richard Wells' Cooper's Ferry. co

Bank of North America.

THE STOCKHOLDERS are hereby notified that an election for twelve Directors for the ensuing year will be held at the Bank on Monday the 9th of January at ten o'clock.

Being all the valuable prizes, besides a full proportion of the 10 dollars.

As the Lottery is considerably more than one third drawn, the value of the undrawn tickets is greatly increased, and it is worth the notice of those who hold tickets in the old scheme, that they can exchange their tickets for those in the above, if they apply soon, and at a moderate advance considering the now real value of an undrawn ticket.

The tickets being nearly all sold, the drawing in future will be oftener, and the Lottery soon finished.

Treasury Department,

September 28, 1796.

NOTICE is hereby given, that proposals will be received at the office of the Secretary of the Treasury until the expiration of the first day of March next ensuing, for the supply of all rations which may be required for the use of the United States, from the first day of June, 1797, to the thirty-first day of May, 1798, both days inclusive, at the places and within the districts hereafter mentioned, viz. At Oswego; at Niagara; at Pacque Isle; at Sandusky Lake, and on Sandusky River; at Detroit; at Michilimackinac; at Fort Franklin; at Pittsburgh; at Cincinnati; at Fort-Hamilton; at Fort St. Clair; at Fort-Jefferson; at Grenville; at Picque Town and Loramies Store; at Fort Adams; at Fort Wayne; at Fort Defiance; at any place below Fort Defiance on the Miami River to Lake Erie; at Fort Steuben; at Fort Massac; at any place from Fort Massac to the south boundary of the United States on the river Mississippi; at Fort Knox; at Ouiatanon.

If supplies shall be required for any posts or places not mentioned in this notice, all such supplies shall be furnished at prices proportioned to those to be paid at the posts before recited, or as may be hereafter agreed on between the United States and the Contractor.

The rations to be supplied are to consist of the following articles, viz.

One pound two ounces of bread or flour.

One pound two ounces of beef, or fourteen ounces of pork or bacon.

Half a gill of rum, brandy or whiskey.

One quart and half a pint of salt. } per hundred rations
Two quarts of Vinegar,
Two pounds of Soap,
One pound of Candles,

The rations are to be furnished in such quantities, as that there shall at all times during the said term, be sufficient for the consumption of the troops at Michilimackinac, Detroit, Niagara, and Oswego, for the term of six months in advance, and at each of the other posts, for the term of at least three months in advance, in good and wholesome provisions, if the same shall be required. It is to be understood, that the Contractor is to be at the expence and risk of issuing the supplies to the troops at each post, and that all losses sustained by the depredations of an enemy, or by means of the troops of the United States, shall be paid for at the price of the articles captured or destroyed, on the depositions of two or more persons of creditable characters, and the certificate of a commissioned officer, ascertaining the circumstances of the loss, and the amount of the articles for which compensation shall be claimed.
